

Finally, it looks like summer.

So today and the next week look great, weather-wise! So this morning I decided to take my camera with me to work with my Olympus 60mm. Spring means flowers! So here are a quick few from today. I found the macro work to be challenging! The very sharp plane of focus meant that it was difficult with the wind. I stopped down to 5.6, alas, it was still tricky trying to find focus! I found the macro focus knob on the lens easier to adjust for 1:1 than I thought it would be, once I located it with my finger I could concentrate on the viewfinder and trying to deal with the wicked wind. All in all, a great lunch hour!

This photo is a close-up from a model close to Confederation Park, the second is a tiny Nepali buddha statue that my colleague gave me. Then it's just flowers. ☐☐

20130503-180525.jpg

20130503-180535.jpg

20130503-180550.jpg

20130503-180602.jpg

20130503-180613.jpg

20130503-180621.jpg

20130503-180634.jpg

20130503-180641.jpg

20130503-180649.jpg

20130503-180659.jpg

20130503-180706.jpg

20130503-180718.jpg

20130503-180727.jpg

20130503-180737.jpg

20130503-180743.jpg

20130503-180750.jpg

20130503-180758.jpg

20130503-180807.jpg

Source: <https://www.idonthaveacoolname.com/finally-it-looks-like-summer/>