

Spain - a few from Barcelona

I just returned from a pretty awesome trip to Spain, ostensibly to see the “Caravaggio” at the Prado in Madrid. More to come on that. My sleep schedule is off so I decided to import all of my camera photos and start editing a few. I will post food in a separate post but Caelis was fantastic as were several local small restos near my hotel in the Eixample district, just north of the old Gothic quarter. I also included some pics from MOCA where Banksy, Basquiat and Kusama can be found, quite the treat! The Sagrada Familia was fantastic although incredibly busy with crowds. I couldn’t imagine it in the summer tourist season. I liked the Picasso gallery but, TBH, I found its selection to be limited to his Blue period. The various “views” of Velasquez’s Las Meninas at the Prado were, however, sublime. The architecture of the city is amazing, not just the churches but also the various buildings that you see just wandering down the streets. The Gaudi buildings were pretty spectacular too.

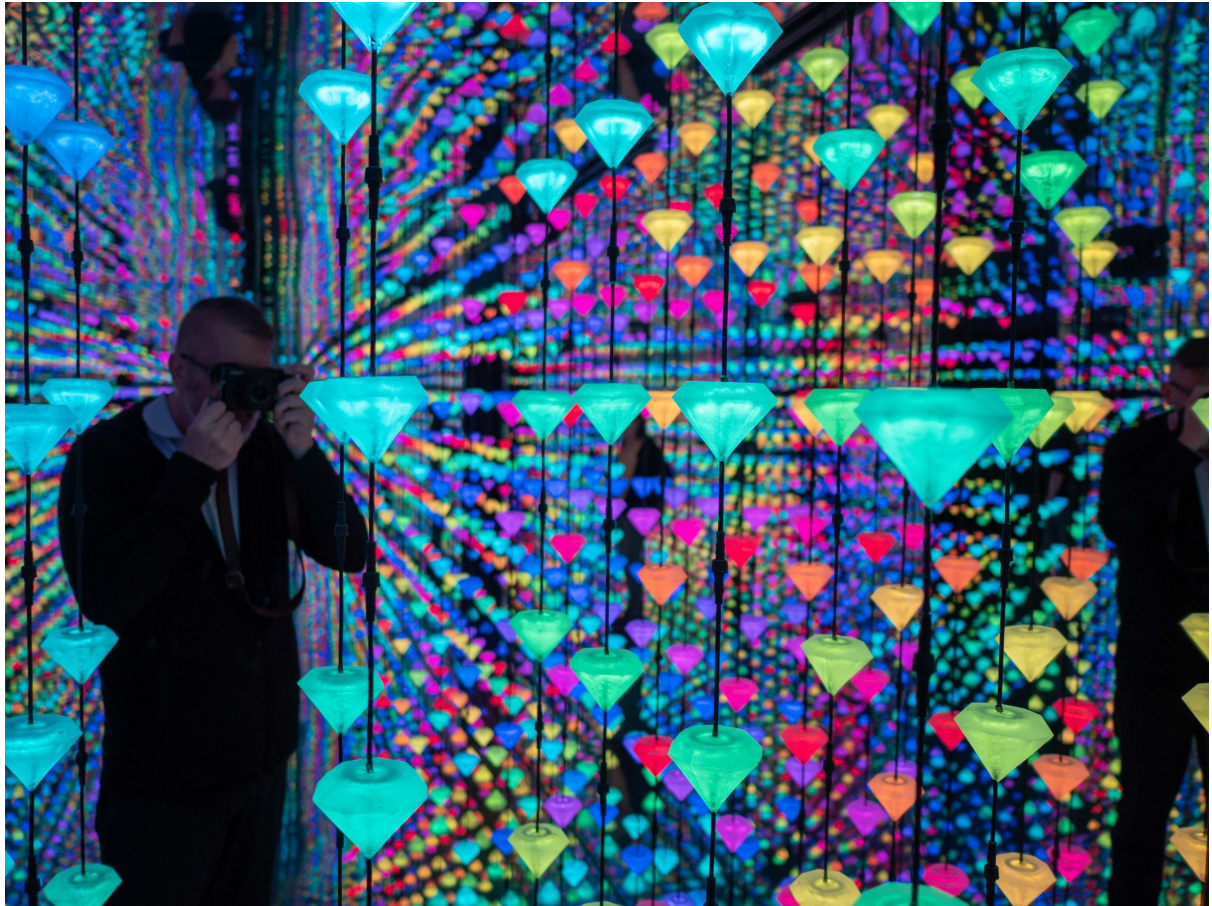

Source: <https://www.idonthaveacoolname.com/spain-a-few-bw-and-architecture-from-barcelona/>

Images used in this blog post

IL MIO DISIR DEE AVER FINE
IN QUESTO TIRO E ANGELICO TEMPIO
CHE SOLO AMORE E LUCE HA PER CONFINE
XXXXXXXXXX PARADISO XXVIII 52-54

