wowsers… update on my reckless consumerism

So I was wondering whether or not I was going to be as impressed as many reviewers are about the Olympus 60mm. It is a tiny, long lens that struck me as rather steampunk when attached to my GH2. It was late and I was tired but attached it and took a few shots. Due to light limitations (it was dark outside too) I realized that handheld may not work if I wanted to shoot at, say, f22. So I just mounted it on my tripod and took some shots. Really sharp. Great lens, I really cannot wait until this long four day weekend down to the park. The weather looks promising!!!!!

This is f2.8

image

cork….

image

And again… image

close up of my singing bowl!

image

And even sharper at higher F.

image

The F22 is nice □□

image

Source: https://www.idonthaveacoolname.com/wowsers-update-on-my-reckless-consumerism/